Purpose

This specification defines the constitutional meaning of Discovery.

Discovery is the constitutional mechanism through which Organodynamics expands its understanding of reality.

Discovery SHALL improve explanation.

Discovery SHALL preserve continuity.

Discovery SHALL remain distinguishable from invention, opinion, implementation, and decision.

1. Definition

A Constitutional Discovery is a demonstrable improvement in constitutional understanding resulting from interaction with reality.

A Discovery SHALL produce:

Improved Explanation

or

Reduced Uncertainty

or

Improved Predictive Capability

or

Improved Constitutional Coherence

Novelty alone SHALL NOT constitute Discovery.

2. Discovery Preconditions

Every Discovery SHALL originate from:

An explicit Question,

or

an observed Anomaly,

or

a demonstrated Limitation,

or new Evidence.

Discovery SHALL remain traceable to its origin.

3. Discovery Components

Every Constitutional Discovery SHALL expose:

Identifier

Origin

Question

Previous Understanding

New Understanding

Supporting Evidence

Method

Remaining Uncertainty

Historical Lineage

Dependencies

4. Discovery and Reality

Reality is the constitutional reference.

Reality SHALL NOT be modified by constitutional interpretation.

Interpretation evolves.

Reality remains the source against which constitutional understanding is continuously tested.

5. Discovery and Surprise

Unexpected observations SHALL receive constitutional attention.

Unexpected outcomes SHALL NOT be discarded because they contradict expectations.

Surprise is constitutional information.

Surprise SHALL initiate investigation.

6. Discovery and Failure

Failed expectations MAY produce Discovery.

Failure SHALL remain distinguishable from error.

Failure MAY reveal:

Hidden assumptions

Incomplete explanations

Unknown relationships

Incorrect predictions

Failure SHALL remain historically valuable.

7. Discovery and Revision

Every Discovery SHALL identify:

What changed.

Why it changed.

What remained unchanged.

What assumptions were revised.

Revision SHALL preserve constitutional continuity.

8. Discovery and Prediction

A Discovery becomes stronger when it improves prediction.

Predictions SHALL remain:

Observable

Testable

Historically attributable

Incorrect predictions SHALL initiate constitutional review.

9. Discovery and Generalization

A Discovery MAY extend beyond its original context.

Generalization SHALL require explicit justification.

Generalization SHALL preserve:

Known limitations

Applicable contexts

Known exceptions

Generalization SHALL remain revisable.

10. Discovery and Contradiction

Contradictions MAY precede Discovery.

The constitutional objective is not immediate resolution.

The constitutional objective is improved explanation.

Contradictions SHALL remain visible throughout investigation.

11. Discovery and Canon

A Discovery SHALL NOT immediately modify the Canon.

Canonical evolution requires:

Validation

Historical review

Compatibility analysis

Constitutional evaluation

Discovery precedes Canon.

12. Discovery Lifecycle

Every Discovery SHALL progress through the following constitutional states.

Observed

↓

Investigated

↓

Supported

↓

Validated

↓

Integrated

Canonical (optional)

Not every Discovery SHALL become Canonical.

13. Discovery Quality

Discovery quality SHALL be evaluated through:

Explanatory improvement

Evidence quality

Reproducibility

Predictive improvement

Contextual clarity

Historical traceability

Popularity SHALL NOT influence Discovery quality.

14. Discovery Preservation

Every Discovery SHALL preserve:

Previous explanations

Alternative interpretations

Supporting evidence

Historical context

Unresolved uncertainty

No Discovery SHALL erase its predecessors.

15. Discovery Independence

Equivalent Discoveries MAY arise independently.

Independent Discovery SHALL strengthen constitutional confidence.

Independent Discovery SHALL preserve independent historical attribution.

16. Discovery Responsibility

Participants engaged in Discovery SHALL distinguish between:

Observation

Interpretation

Speculation

Evidence

Conclusion

These categories SHALL remain explicit throughout the Discovery process.

17. Discovery Integrity

A Constitutional Discovery SHALL satisfy all of the following:

It is explainable.

It is traceable.

It is challengeable.

It is reproducible in principle.

It preserves constitutional continuity.

It expands constitutional understanding.

Failure of any condition SHALL require constitutional review.

Conformance

A constitutional investigation conforms to this specification when independent investigators can reconstruct why a Discovery occurred, what changed, what evidence supported the change, and how the new understanding improved upon the previous one.

Constitutional Principle

Discovery is not the act of finding something new.

Discovery is the constitutional act of becoming less wrong while preserving the history of how understanding changed.

A discipline advances not by replacing yesterday's explanations, but by making tomorrow's explanations capable of explaining both yesterday and today.
