Purpose

This specification defines the constitutional review process through which mature discoveries are evaluated for possible incorporation into the Organodynamics corpus.

The purpose of Constitutional Review is not to defend the existing corpus.

It is not to favor novelty.

Its purpose is to determine, through disciplined constitutional reasoning, whether a proposed discovery strengthens the constitutional understanding of the discipline.

Review SHALL evaluate.

It SHALL not presume acceptance.

---

1. Objective

The objective of Constitutional Review is to provide an independent, transparent, and reproducible evaluation of proposals that have successfully completed the methodological process.

The review SHALL preserve:

Constitutional integrity.

Scientific rigor.

Historical accountability.

Transparency.

Independent judgment.

2. Definition

A Constitutional Review is the formal examination of a proposed constitutional addition, revision, clarification, or deprecation against the existing Organodynamics corpus.

The review SHALL determine constitutional suitability.

It SHALL not determine institutional preference.

---

3. Review Inputs

Every Constitutional Review SHALL identify:

The originating Discovery.

The complete methodological record.

Applicable constitutional specifications.

Relevant architectural implications.

Implementation implications.

Terminological implications.

Historical precedents.

Competing constitutional interpretations.

Review SHALL remain evidence-based.

---

4. Review Questions

The review SHOULD explicitly evaluate:

Does the proposal demonstrate constitutional necessity?

Does it improve explanatory power?

Does it preserve coherence?

Does it introduce contradictions?

Does it require revision of existing specifications?

Does it affect canonical terminology?

Does it preserve long-term consistency?

Every question SHALL preserve explicit reasoning.

5. Review Outcomes

A Constitutional Review MAY conclude:

Accept without revision.

Accept with constitutional revision.

Return for additional investigation.

Return for methodological clarification.

Reject with documented reasoning.

Defer pending future evidence.

Every outcome SHALL preserve explicit justification.

6. Independence

Constitutional Reviews SHOULD be conducted by reviewers who were not primarily responsible for the original Discovery.

Independent review SHALL strengthen constitutional legitimacy.

Reviewer independence SHALL remain documented.

---

7. Historical Preservation

Every Constitutional Review SHALL preserve:

Review participants.

Review reasoning.

Alternative positions.

Minority opinions, where applicable.

Final determination.

Affected specifications.

Historical continuity.

---

8. Verification

Verification SHALL demonstrate:

Evidence traceability.

Methodological completeness.

Review transparency.

Reasoning consistency.

Historical continuity.

Independent reproducibility.

9. Constitutional Review Test

A Constitutional Review satisfies this specification when independent review bodies, using the same methodological record and constitutional corpus, consistently reach constitutionally compatible judgments regarding the suitability of a proposal for incorporation into the Organodynamics corpus.

10. Conformance

A Constitutional Review conforms to this specification when it evaluates proposals through transparent constitutional reasoning, preserves methodological traceability, documents alternative viewpoints, maintains historical continuity, and remains independently reproducible.

Methodological Principle

A discipline is strengthened neither by accepting every new idea, nor by protecting every old one.

It is strengthened by subjecting both to the same constitutional standard.

The purpose of Constitutional Review is therefore not to decide quickly,

but to decide carefully—

preserving a discipline whose future depends equally on its willingness to learn, and its willingness to question even its own most established truths.
